DELETE, DELETE, DELETE

The Eisenhower modelling of the Federal Communications Commission ("FCC") is well overdue to finally delete, delete, delete the FCC. Consistent to abolishing the federal Department of Education, the same can be said of that of the FCC after almost 100 years of being a centralized 3 letter "agency" on L Street in the District of Corruption swamp that serves Lobbying and Bribery Firms on L Street as well as over on K and M Streets up to 9th Street. You call that a representative Constitutional Republic or even a "Democracy"?

Simply deleting the FCC and migrating it's functions to meet the 10th Amendment of the U.S. Constitution and return power back to the states is simply met by abolishing the FCC and establishing a new U.S. Communications Administration ("USCA") structured consistent to how President Eisenhower created the U.S. Small Business Administration back in 1953 for a representative Constitutional Republic or "Democracy"

How would a USCA look to the lobbyist or briber who walks through the revolving door of the current centralized FCC L Street offices since 1934? A single USCA Director and small staff "agency" office could be established in Kansas, Texas or Floriday or even Arizona as well as a USCA Director for each state that can be voted in by "We, The People" in each federal election for each state.

Current 47 CFR (Crookery From Regulations – i.e. selective serving) structure would be deconstructred through delete, delete, delete and migrated into the new USCA agency structure and each state would be be responsible for it's own licensing and management of communications assets. Monitoring each state's lobbying and bribery firms would also be build into USCA regulations bringing nation to 1776-1789 standards...
